

APPLY FOR FUNDING

THE INFECTIOUS DISEASE AND CLIMATE CHANGE PROGRAM IS NOW ACCEPTING FUNDING REQUESTS

The Public Health Agency of Canada (PHAC) is accepting funding requests to address the impact of climate change on human health to prepare and protect Canadians from climate-driven infectious diseases that are zoonotic (diseases that can be transmitted from animals/ insects to humans), food-borne and/or water-borne.

Applicants are encouraged to apply for 1-3 year funding agreements with a maximum value of $150,000 per project year. Projects will need to demonstrate how one of the following objectives is fulfilled:

- 1 MOVING THE MARKER: Solutions to enhance capacity and address the epidemiology and burden of illness related to climate-driven tick-borne and mosquito-borne diseases in at-risk communities

Projects are anticipated to begin in August 2019

DEADLINE FOR APPLICATIONS: 11:59PM MONDAY, APRIL 22, 2019***

*Submit a full Funding Request package to apply

- 2 BUILDING A FOUNDATION: Knowledge translations/exchange, capacity building, and collaboration mechanisms to help Canadians and health professionals understand the risks and opportunities associated with health and climate change adaptation

Projects are anticipated to begin in April 2020

DEADLINE FOR APPLICATIONS: 11:59PM MONDAY, APRIL 1, 2019†

†Submit a Letter of Intent (LOI) to begin the application process

- 3 ENHANCING KNOWLEDGE: Novel approaches to gain a comprehensive understanding of the impact climate-driven infectious diseases have on human health:

- ✓ Domestic zoonotic disease including vector-borne disease beyond tick and mosquito vectors
- ✓ Climate-driven food-borne illness
- ✓ Environmentally mediated infectious diseases, including infectious agents within recreational waters

Projects are anticipated to begin in April 2020

DEADLINE FOR APPLICATIONS: 11:59PM MONDAY, APRIL 1, 2019†

†Submit a Letter of Intent (LOI) to begin the application process
